PRICELESS LESSONS™ I LEARNED ALONG MY JOURNEY TO BECOMING MY OWN BOSS

MY STORY

It's still not easy for women to move up the ladder into executive positions - even though women have proven to be effective leaders. So why are many highly qualified women having such a difficult time reaching executive levels? Part of the answer lies within the senior management of the companies for whom they work. To have their talent recognized, it requires the awareness, commitment and leadership confidence of those making the hiring and promotion decisions.

At the age of 35, I was recruited by the CEO of a publicly-held medical device company. The company's stock price fell below the SEC minimum, became delisted and was obviously in big trouble. The position was VP/General Manager of its main revenue generating business unit - a divisional turnaround was quickly needed. I accepted the challenge not only because the CEO did a good sales job on me, but more importantly, he convinced me that gender was not an important consideration in running a business. The significant factors were skills, abilities and leadership qualities.

Here's 7 of the priceless lessons I learned along the way and what it took to stay on top of my game:

1

FLEXIBILITY is second only to INTEGRITY. Create a mindset that change is an inevitable part of business operations. The ability to change course quickly when needed could result in your company's survival.

2

Always get the FACTS - it is easy to make a bad decision based on "false" assumptions. It's challenging to make the right decision, even with the best data.

3

This isn't a popularity contest - learn to make those tough decisions regardless of whether you are liked at the end of the day. It's more important to be RESPECTED in the workplace.

4

Hiring the right TALENT will make your job easier - don't be insecure about hiring people smarter than you. If your group can't achieve, neither will you. You will not be successful unless your team is successful!

5

Attunement to the CEO's agenda - knowing what his/her expectations are (not what you think they are, or should be) is key to your retention. Make sure you have ALIGNMENT with your boss.

6

Despite the complexity and clutter of day-to-day activities, you must FOCUS on your company's strategic thrust and making money for all stockholders – employees, customers and the investors. You must stay focused on this critical objective to assure company goals are achieved.

LUCK!

MY POV & PERSONAL TIPS TO GREATER BUSINESS SUCCESS ... AND A HAPPIER LIFE!

- Avoid office gossip and politics - you should be too busy for this drama!
- Support and collaborate with your women colleagues instead of competing with them. Women can be harsh to one another - don't fall into this category. Remember: kindness is power.
- One of my favorite sayings: "Your reputation is like money - hard to get and easy to lose!"
- If you don't like yourself, why should anyone else?
- Be positive, engaging, motivating and inspiring. Otherwise, you'll attract the opposite - negative people with a lot of baggage.
- Avoid a life of regrets. Ask for what you want and say NO to what you don't want. So often we get into situations that we know we should have said no to, and we only end up regretting it afterwards.
- Use the word "we" instead of "I" and experience the power of defusing a negative situation.
- You can't change people, so quit trying. It's exhausting.
- There is no substitute for humility. Add these powerful statements to your daily vocabulary: "Thank you. Can I help you? What's your opinion on this? I'm sorry."

What's your personal brand? Here's mine...

*Cathy Light's
Secret Sauce to Success*

1. Attitude: I'm a positive person both personally and professionally.

2. Confidence: I have the skills, abilities and talent to excel.

3. Drive: I'm ambitious. It's up to me to create my own success.

4. Visualization: I close my eyes, visualize my challenges, and see a positive outcome.

3. Identify THREE ACTIONS that you can begin tomorrow to move you forward on your road map to success.

---

---

---

---

1. Acknowledge your skills, abilities, talents and areas of learning.

Strengths	Development Areas

2. Identify mentors that can provide honest feedback and coaching.

WOMEN IN THE WORKPLACE

According to McKinsey & Company's monthly highlight in September 2016, titled "Women in the Workplace 2016," women fall behind early in corporate America and keep losing ground with every step. A joint study from LeanIn.Org and McKinsey elaborates on these patterns, providing some explanations in their research, and shares insights to priorities for leaders seeking to speed the rate of progress.

Women in these positions include:

- C Suite positions 19%
- Senior VP positions 24%
- VP positions 29%
- Director positions 33%
- Managerial positions 37%
- Entry level positions 46%

SUGGESTIONS FOR CONTINUED MOVEMENT

CEOs and executives from major companies offered insights and suggestions on the study's findings throughout the report. Some of these include:

1. Don't assume that the playing field has been leveled
2. Redesign systems to correct early inequities
3. Collect and review salary growth metrics
4. Build in "checks and balances" against unconscious bias
5. Make assignments based on qualifications, not presumptions
